A Beautiful Time

As summer slips away we are beginning to see subtle seasonal changes—somehow the fall air smells different and already there are hints of color in the aspens. Autumn is coming fast. While many welcome the cooler nights, shorter days seem to have its downside. Countless studies show that many struggle during this time of year with seasonal affective mood issues, commonly associated with depression. Often, this emotional change begins as early as September as the days grow shorter and continues through the winter months. Some of the side affects can be moodiness, sluggishness, and sleep deprivation which impacts energy levels and physical activities.

To counter some of the affects of those so-called “winter blues”, September is a good time to start planning more physical activity like walking. Consider walking around the neighborhood, join friends on the walking tour during ArtWalk night, go window shopping even during off hours, and keep walking as much as possible outdoors during the day where you will enjoy an energy boost. Plan an afternoon or early evening exploring Old Colorado City with a friend, and make time to visit us and a dozen more art galleries on Colorado Avenue where you will find calm and enlightenment.

Autumn is a beautiful season and we invite you to visit Hunter-Wolff Gallery where it is as beautiful inside as outside this time of year. To give you that emotional boost, stop in and study some of the delightful sculptures by Cassandra Sharon, guaranteed to put a smile on your face. Check out all the great colors and textures found in the clayware by Marty Price, Marc Jenesel, Kerry Brooks, Mark Wong, and Tony Heslop and the pure colors found in glass art by Dennis DeBon, Donna Gordon and Dottie Boscamp. Our shelves and walls are refreshed weekly with new pieces for you to explore. We always enjoy your visits where we learn more about your interests and preferences. We welcome your inquiries at 719-520-9494 and staff@hunterwolffgallery.com.

We wish you a happy Fall and hope you will stop in soon for a personal visit where you will certainly shake off those winter blues.

Believe It or Not! Artist Vincent Van Gogh produced more than 2,000 works during his life: 900 paintings and 1,100 drawings and sketches. He only sold one painting while he was alive. Talk about a starving artist! Who got all the money for his amazing work?

Artist Spotlight

CASSANDRA | SHARON

With more than 256,000 horses grazing Colorado pastures, including 17,800 thoroughbreds and 106,400 quarter horses, it may not surprise anyone that there are a few horse-loving artists in Colorado!

One of those artists is Cassandra Sharon, a fifth generation Colorado native who says she has been living and breathing horses for as long as she can remember. Throughout her life she has drawn, painted and sculpted horses experimenting with various media in a rainbow of colors, texture and patterns.

While working her way through a Fine Arts degree at the University of Southern Colorado, she favored sculpture and began an exploration that expresses metaphor through a stylized, often whimsical creation. Her many years on horseback, caring, loving, and rescuing horses, gave her in depth insight into understanding the equine personality and how best to express it through her art work.

Cassandra's day is filled with tasks of caring for horses yet schedules time to sculpt the creatures she loves the most. Her work is easily recognized, having developed her own signature style that emulates the spirited personality of each creature in an impressionistic manner. Her work is as much about character and the distinctive qualities of her subjects as it is about form, color and texture. Every sculpture is dynamic with its own spiritual energy while reflecting individual personality types. Many are drawn to Cassandra's sculptures for a variety reasons but we often hear "they make us smile and giggle". The whimsical attributes, like a pony balancing a slice of water mellon on its nose, can only make one smile.

Continually working on new ideas that best express these four-legged creatures' traits, whether horses, burros, mules or longhorns, Cassandra Sharon brings us closer to these furry friends and hairy creatures and maybe even better understand our own humility. Stop in for Cassandra's Opening Reception on Friday, Sept. 1 during ArtWalk.

Whether you're an artist or art collector, it is only natural to be curious about what type of paintings are most popular. The question comes up frequently. When searching for answers, we often come across similar reports listing the top 10 best sellers, but it doesn't mean that an artist or buyer should change their focus. It's just a list and may not even apply to your specific region. Nonetheless, you asked so we are sharing Art Business Today's findings which have been consistent since we last reported this information in 2012:

1. Traditional landscapes
2. Plein air of local regions
3. Modern or semi-abstract landscapes
4. Abstracts
5. Dogs
6. Figure studies (excluding nudes)
7. Seascapes, harbor, and beach scenes
8. Wildlife
9. Impressionistic landscapes
10. Nudes

However, over the years at Hunter-Wolff Gallery, you consistently buy:

1. Impressionistic landscapes
2. Photorealistic landscapes with water
3. Plein air of local regions, iconic scenes
4. Still life paintings, florals
5. Figurative and figure
6. Seascapes
7. Landscapes with figures
8. Wildlife, horses
9. Southwest subject matter
10. Cityscapes, architectural

If your interests lie elsewhere, let us know and we will guide you to find the work you want even if we have to send you down the street. The key is to select work you love and to stick to your personal preferences.
